PLOT SUMMARY

On his first American lecture tour in 1882, Irish poet & playwright Oscar Wilde calls on his literary hero, the venerable poet Walt Whitman. Cultures clash, egos flare, words fly and secrets emerge as these two geniuses face off in one unforgettable meeting of hearts, minds, and poetry.

PLAYWRIGHT'S NOTE

“Oscar & Walt” was completed in 2019, the bicentennial of Walt Whitman’s birth, and had its world premiere in Rome that same year. The play was inspired by my discovery of a little-known meeting between the 62-year-old Whitman and the 28-year-old Oscar Wilde that took place in Camden, New Jersey, in January 1882.

There is no detailed account of what happened but the inherent dramatic and comedic possibilities of their meeting proved irresistible to me and perfect for the stage. Who were the private men concealed beneath the giant egos and larger-than-life public personalities these literary titans projected to the world? What would two celebrated authors of such contrasting ages, backgrounds, writing styles, and temperaments reveal to one another when they were out of the limelight and alone in Walt’s messy den in Camden?

I started with the premise that they were bound together intellectually by a passionate love of language – of words – of art and new ideas. But as they discover during their afternoon conversation, they share other deeply felt emotions and vulnerabilities as well, secrets that threaten to undermine their lives and destroy their reputations.

Do these revelations emerge as a result of the homebrewed elderberry wine served to them by Walt’s sister-in-law, Louisa? Maybe so, for Louisa – fascinated and bewildered by poets and poetry – plays an important role in that afternoon’s proceedings, and her plainspoken honesty serves as an astringent antidote to the rarefied world inhabited by the curmudgeonly Walt and his flamboyantly theatrical guest.

These three characters – Oscar, Walt, and Louisa – took hold of my imagination and had their say as I wrote “Oscar & Walt.” What they told me was that in the end, no matter how famous you may be, you are still a human being with a shared human need to connect by listening, laughing, and loving.

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

If you've felt like you've been missing out on live theatre, “Oscar & Walt” reminds you that it doesn't matter where you live – you can still see amazing performances!

In this delightful play, we take a look at the lives of Oscar Wilde and Walt Whitman. Donald Olson's script, while part historical fact and part fiction, asks us to consider what life might have been like for these two writers. While they are quite universally honored today, when they lived, their reputations might have been different.

The play does a wonderful job of reminding us that these two literary lions had the same concerns many of us do today. In many ways, we are still grappling with the same issues of censorship and sexual orientation people did when Walt Whitman and Oscar Wilde lived 134 years ago. The more things change, the more they stay the same.

Olson's writing is not stuffy or distant. He creates these men, along with Whitman's sister-in-law Louisa, as three-dimensional, real people you might find in your home. We see the contrast between Whitman's earnest Americanism and Wilde's flights of English witticism – but don't let that scare you. In these 90 minutes, you get a sense of the men behind the words that feel simultaneously respectful and revealing.

It's one thing to read about these historical figures; it's another thing entirely to watch them come alive right before your eyes.

The work of PlayZoomers is important to me because it makes stories such as these, performed live, accessible to folks across the country. I am thrilled that in collaboration with Indiana University Bloomington, PlayZoomers is bringing “Oscar & Walt” to you – for the first time – via live-streaming.

CAST BIOS

Steve Scott (Walt Whitman) Since his 2012 acting debut, Steve has performed for a half dozen local production companies. In the last year, he played the Spider in Bloomington Playwrights Project's “Fortunate Heist,” butlers Lane and Merriman in Constellation Stage and Screen's “The Importance of Being Earnest,” and most recently Porter Milgram in Constellation's “Deathtrap.” This is Steve’s first role with PlayZoomers.

Devin May (Oscar Wilde) is a proud Bloomington native and IU alum, with 75+ theatre credits in Indiana, Kentucky, Chicago, Boston, and DC. Most recently, Devin appeared in Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" (Jack Worthing) for Constellation Stage & Screen. He has also worked for Constellation teaching acting fundamentals to Bloomington's talented young people! His favorite project to date was "Super Richard World III," a Shakespeare-Super Mario mashup by Chicago's Otherworld Theatre which landed on the Chicago Reader's "Best Plays of 2019" list. This is his PlayZoomers debut.

Greta Lind (Louisa Whitman) was in "All My Children" and the film "Rudy." She loved raising her two wonderful boys and writing her debut novel, Split Open (audiobook coming soon). Greta's recent acting work includes "The Ernie Pyle Experiment!" (an Audie Awards® finalist), "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz," and Constellation's "The Importance of Being Earnest," and "Deathtrap." This is her first appearance with PlayZoomers.
